

STEGMAN & LAMBERT

For Lambertville City Council

View Video Message

Steve Stegman

Steve Stegman has deep roots in Lambertville. An avid collector of pop culture items and classic toys, he opened his first store, Boomerabilia, in town in 1986. It later became the largest collectible emporium in the northeast, known as the 5 & Dime. During these years, Steve used his skills to enhance the economic vitality of the City while preserving its rich history and the quality of life.

Formerly a city councilman for 17 years, Steve has been involved with a list of projects to enhance Lambertville life: the traffic calming project; a bike and pedestrian safety program; streetscape improvement project; decorative sidewalk trash & recycling receptacles and improved lighting; the creation of the City Square public space at the corner of Bridge and South Union Sts.; the adaptive reuse and preservation of many buildings including such Historic Landmarks as the A.H. Holcombe House, now City Hall, and the ACME Market, now known as the Phillip L. Pittore Justice Center.

Steve joined the Lambertville Chamber of Commerce in 1990 and chaired the Chamber's Annual Shad Festival. Under his seventeen-year direction, the all-volunteer festival was awarded Best Event three times by the New Jersey Office of Travel & Tourism. During that period, the Shad Festival Poster Auction raised over $300,000 for art scholarships to local high school students.

Steve lives on Studdiford Street with his partner of 35 years, Paul, and their Miniature Schnauzer Garbo, who knows more people in Lambertville than Steve and Paul combined.

View Video Message

Benedetta Lambert

Benedetta Lambert has lived in Lambertville for the past 35 years with her husband, Russ Lambert, a 13th-generation member of the Lambert family, and their son, Russell Jr.

Benedetta spent over forty years as an Information Technology (IT) professional, working primarily in the banking and healthcare sectors as a Project Manager and Business Systems Analyst. As a result of her experience, she possesses significant business acumen in a number of finance-related business areas, including: Purchasing, Accounts Payable, Accounts Receivable, General Ledger, Capital Project Management, Supply Chain and Financial/Systems Audit.

Benedetta has also managed departmental IT contracts and project budgets. From this experience, she possesses the strong analytical and critical thinking skills needed to make the fact and data-based recommendations for sound business solutions.

Benedetta has also maintained a strong community presence, serving formerly as a Board member at Fisherman's Mark, a social services agency based in Lambertville. She has also held multiple Board and Officer positions with The Kalmia Club, a women's organization noted for their community-based outreach and scholarships.

For over thirty years, Benedetta has also had considerable experience with various State and County agencies serving special needs individuals in Hunterdon and Mercer Counties.